

Page 1 of 4

Captain Beakon carries his telescope up the hill. Tonight he hopes to show Luckybug a planet. He looks up. Clouds stretch from one end of the sky to the other.

Page 2 of 4

A single star peeps through, then vanishes. “Shall we go home?” asks Luckybug. Captain Beakon sets up the telescope. “Five more minutes,” he says. “Let us see what happens.”

Page 3 of 4

The clouds pull apart. Beside the moon, a bright planet shines through the gap. Captain Beakon looks, then steps aside. “Your turn.” Luckybug hurries to the telescope before the clouds return.

Page 4 of 4

Soon the gap closes. They sit in the quiet and watch the sky. “I nearly missed it,” says Luckybug. On the way home, she keeps looking up, hoping for another gap.

Questions for Captain Beakon’s Star Watch

Read the story together first. Use one question at each page, then the question at the end. Answers are below the dotted line: fold them under or cover them while reading.

Page 1

Talk together: What might Captain Beakon be thinking when he sees the clouds?

Page 2

Talk together: Why might five more minutes make a difference?

Page 3

Talk together: Why does Captain Beakon give Luckybug a turn straight away?

Page 4

Talk together: What shows that Luckybug feels differently about waiting now?

After reading

What would Luckybug have missed if she had gone home at once?

Answers (fold under before reading)

After reading: The chance to see the planet when a gap opened. Waiting gave the sky time to change, even though the gap did not last.