

Page 1 of 4

The Baby Bulldogs chase their red ball across the grass until it rolls beside a puppy sitting alone. The puppy nudges it back without looking up.

Page 2 of 4

One Bulldog invites the puppy to the swing. Another talks so excitedly that the invitation gets lost beneath a tumble of words.

Page 3 of 4

Luckybug draws a chalk line with a star at each end. The puppy can join by rolling the ball across—no talking needed.

Page 4 of 4

Soon the playground has one longer team and one very waggy new friend. The Bulldogs learn that a welcome can be an action, not only a question.

Questions for Baby Bulldogs at the Playground

Read the story together first. Use one question at each page, then the question at the end. Answers are below the dotted line: fold them under or cover them while reading.

Page 1

Talk together: What might the quiet puppy be feeling?

Page 2

Talk together: Why might the invitation feel difficult to answer?

Page 3

Talk together: How does the chalk game make joining easier?

Page 4

Talk together: What welcoming action worked best?

After reading

Why did the chalk game help the quiet puppy join in?

Answers (fold under before reading)

After reading: The puppy could play without having to speak. Rolling the ball let the puppy answer the welcome with an action.